Bailey Thibodeaux is a sophomore who plays as an infielder on the softball team. Thibodeaux came to the Warhawks from Lake Charles, Louisiana. She likes that she is close enough to home so that her parents can come and watch games.

Thibodeaux recently decided on majoring in marketing after speaking with her advisor about some of the things that she likes to do. She really likes the aspect of being creative to try to attract customers.

Thibodeaux decided that she wanted to be a Warhawks after coming to a summer camp where she felt at home and like a part of the family.

She sees softball as a game highs and many lows so when you do have success it makes it that much more rewarding. You have to put in the extra time outside of practice to be good.

Thibodeaux likes that ULM is not a huge school and she sees the same people every day. "I pass people on the way to class every day and I don't even know them but I ask them how the test went or whatever." She sees this campus as a family that it's not just the athletes.
